Description
The 05-10009-SV1P ships the Cobra 10.0 220C single-vac extractor as a complete kit with the 13" Trident Wand and a 15' hose set. This is the cold-water, single-vac configuration for operators who want the Cobra 10.0's high-capacity tanks and 220V motor without the higher amperage draw of a heated dual-vac model.

Not every job requires heated extraction. Routine soil maintenance cleaning on commercial carpet — where soils are primarily dry particulate and light traffic grime, not grease — does not benefit measurably from heated solution. Cold water with proper pre-spray chemistry achieves the same result at lower energy cost and without the circuit amperage demand of a heated model. The single-vac motor draws less current than the dual-vac, allowing more equipment to run on the same electrical panel simultaneously.
The SV1P ships with a 15′ hose rather than the 25′ hose found in some other Cobra 10.0 packages. On large-tank machines, the operator moves the machine less frequently — the large recovery capacity allows cleaning a bigger area per position. A 15′ hose is typically sufficient for standard room widths and hallway segments. Operators cleaning very large open floors may prefer to add a 25′ hose separately.

The Cobra 10.0 220C single-vac draws less amperage than the 220H dual-vac heated models, which matters when running this machine alongside air movers or dehumidifiers on restoration jobs. On maintenance cleaning contracts, the lower circuit demand means the machine is compatible with a wider range of building electrical panels without requiring load calculations.
