Question and Answers
Question: Is this machine heated?
Answer: No, You can place hot water into the fresh water tank up to 140 degrees F.

Question: Does this machine have one or two power cords?
Answer: Only one and it draws a full 20 amps so this machine cannot be used on a 15 amp 120 volt breakers.

Question: Can I still use this machine with one vacuum motor on and one vacuum motor off so I can operate on a 15 amp breaker?
Answer: No. The factory designed this unit with the vacuum motors in parallel. This means if you turn off one motor the motor not in use will allow the air to be sucked backwards though it and make it not have any vacuum.

Question: Can I order this machine with the vacuum in air series so I can operate on a 15 amp breaker?
Answer: Only if you order 6+ machines at time will the factory make any custom changes form a default build. This change would have to be quoted to confirm they will even be willing to build this, but again, please do not ask for a quote until you can commit to at least 6 machines.

Question: Does this machine clean at 220 psi?
Answer: No, it has a 220 psi Aquatec suction feed pump installed under the hood. You standby pressure (wand trigger not squeezed) would be close to 220 psi, but your use pressure (pressure while actually cleaning) will be about 110 psi. A 50% loss in pressure is normal for all suction feed portables. We have confirmed if you convert this machine to pressure feed, it standby pressure and use pressure at a full 220 psi. The conversion is $400 more and takes 2 months build time.

Question: What is the System Maintainer used for?
Answer: For heated machines, it is used to maintain the heater from scale and hard water mineral deposits from clogging the heater. For non heated machine it is added to the rinse water to neutralize the high pH of the prespray and reduces carpet wicking from capillary action and keeps the carpet softer (use only 1/2 oz per gallon) For both the above examples the cleaner is NOT placed in the machine, rather it is presprayed on first and the only thing that goes in the machine is hot water and and a small amount of System Maintainer.
